

Abstract

Regions within editable objects of electronic document can be defined such that specific editing permissions can be granted to specific users for specific regions. The regions can be expressed in an ML format such that a variety of applications that consume ML content can operate in accordance with the granted permissions.